MANY CASES DISPOSED OF TOWARD CLOSE OF COURT.

Jury in Orviston Manslaughter Case Says "Not Guilty."—Court Adjourned on Friday Afternoon.

The jury in the Orviston homicide case, which took up the first half of the week of September court, brought in a verdict of not guilty last Wednesday evening, after a deliberation of four hours, thus setting aside the verdict of guilty in the first trial, a year ago. The case grew out of the finding of the dead body of Henry M. Confer, at Orviston, on the railroad tracks on the night of May 5, 1915. The three men with whom he was last seen alive—Irvin Johnson, Richard Langdon and Dobbin McGarvin—were arrested on suspicion and charged with manslaughter. Their first trial was before Judge Johnson, of Lewisburg, who at the time of charging the jury declared that they would be justified in rendering a verdict of not guilty.

Other cases disposed of were these:

Commonwealth vs. Luella Jones; indicted for malicious mischief; prosecutors M. J. and John Henderson. This case is from Taylor township and the prosecutors are the owners of a tract of land through which the defendant for some time past used a private road. The defendant persisted in opening the bars and leaving them open, claiming that she had a right to do so. At the close of the commonwealth's testimony the court ruled that the only defense that could be offered was that of justification; after which the defendant plead guilty and sentence was suspended.

Commonwealth vs. Reuben Frantz, charged with larceny. The case is from Rush township and the prosecutor, Sterling Simcox, claimed that the defendant took several single trees and pair of shafts from his barn and appropriated them to his own use. Defendant claimed that the prosecutor owed him for paper wood and that the articles were sold to him in satisfaction of the debt. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, the prosecutor to pay two-thirds of the costs and the defendant one-third.

Commonwealth vs. Robert Ryan. Indicted for felonious assault and battery; prosecutor, Ray W. Kunes. The defendant plead not guilty and the case went to trial and grows out of a difficulty between a tramp and an umbrella mender, taking place in Liberty township, but before the case was over the defendant changed his plea from that of not guilty to guilty and was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution, $1.00 fine and to the western penitentiary for not less than two years nor more than three years.

Commonwealth vs. Paul J. McMoniga, charge of larceny; prosecutor Fred Giles, railroad police officer. The defendant waived the finding of the grand jury and plead guilty prior to court and sentence was suspended.

Commonwealth vs. Anthony Sogolosky and Mary Sogolosky, charged with selling liquor without a license; prosecutor William Green. Continued.

Commonwealth vs. supervisors of Walker township. Constables return charging neglect of official duty. Road in process of repair and case settled.

Commonwealth vs. Supervisors of College township. Constables return charging official duty. Nol pros.

Commonwealth vs. Supervisors of Huston township. Constables return charging neglect of official duty, Nol pros and county pays costs.

Commonwealth vs. Supervisors of Curtin township. Constables return charging neglect of official duty. Nol pros and county pays costs.

Commonwealth vs. Supervisors of Potter township. Constables return charging neglect of official duty. Settled.

Commonwealth vs. Sterling Simcox, charged with carrying concealed weapons. Bill ignored and prosecutor, Reuben Frantz, to pay the costs.

Commonwealth vs. John Epoch, charged with burial of body without permit; prosecutor R. J. Brauner, special inspector. Defendant waived the finding of the grand jury prior to court and sentence was suspended upon payment of costs.

Commonwealth vs. Elmer Jackson, charged with disorderly conduct. Prosecutor John E. Parker. Bill ignored and prosecutor to pay the costs.

Commonwealth vs. Levi Wance, charged with desertion and non-support; prosecutrix Lizzie A. Wance. Defendant plead guilty and was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and pay to his wife the sum of $12.00 per month from October 1, 1916.

Commonwealth vs. William Crawshaw, charged with non-support, prosecutrix Jennie Crawshaw. Defendant plead guilty and was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and pay for the support of his weak minded child in Polk institute.

Commonwealth vs. Alexander C. Sharer, charged with desertion and non-support. Prosecutrix Annie A. Sharer. Continued.

Commonwealth vs. Reuben Hurwitz, charged with assault and battery; prosecutrix Eva St. Clair. Nol pros.

Court adjourned Friday afternoon.

CENTRE COUNTY'S FOREST FIRES.

Statistics Show That 29 Forest Fires Occurred Last Spring With Heavy Losses.—Guilty Parties Made Pay Damages in Several Cases.

Statistics made public yesterday by the Department of Forestry show that twenty-nine forest fires burned in Centre county during the 1916 spring forest fire season. The total area burned over by the fires is given as 8,302 acres, and the resulting loss is estimated at about $8,400. It cost $2,208.05 to extinguish the fires. Thirteen of the fires were caused by sparks from locomotives not equipped with effective spark arresters, two by brush burning on dry days, three by careless campers, and one by a smoker who threw a burning cigarette into the leaves.

One fire, which burned from May 9th to 16th in Harris and Ferguson townships covered 1,400 acres in Centre county, and 4,270 acres in Huntingdon county. Centre county's share of the loss from this single fire is over $2,000. Two hundred and fifty State College boys aided in extinguishing the fire. If they had accepted pay for their services Centre's bill for extinction would have been much larger. The largest single fire wholly in Centre county burned in Haines and Miles townships May 11th to 14th. It covered 3,550 acres, did damage estimated at over $3,000, and was caused by one careless fisherman.

Evidence sufficient to convict was obtained in three of the cases. In two cases in Rush and Snow Shoe townships the defendants settled the cases out of court by paying costs and damages. In the third case no prosecution was brought because of the extreme poverty of the guilty person.

FERTILIZER DEMONSTRATION AND FIELD DAY AT SNOW SHOE.

The Pennsylvania State College Has Prepared Interesting Program for Thursday, October 12th.—Lessons in Reclaiming Cut-Over Timber Land and Abandoned Farm Land.

A field day and fertilizer demonstration will be held on Thursday, October 12, on the fertilizer demonstration plots which have been conducted by The Pennsylvania State College one mile west of Snowshoe, on the Clearfield and Philipsburg highway.

More than ordinary interest attaches to this experiment which is an attempt on the part of the college to ascertain the possibilities of reclaiming cut-over timber and abandoned farm land which is found to such a large extent in a number of counties in the State.

Three experiments have been conducted during the past year at the point mentioned by Professor J. W. White of the Department of Experimental Agronomy at State College. One is a pasture demonstration, another covers the economical application of phosphoric acid and a third is a crop rotation experiment. All of these tests have had for their purpose the discovery of the most economical method of reclaiming the large acreage of DeKalb soil, which represents over 12,000,000 acres of land or 43.5 percent. of the soils in Pennsylvania. Thirty-three fertilizer plots one-tenth of an acre in area have been used in this test. Up to date most encouraging results have been obtained and it is with the idea of acquainting the farmers in the vicinity of the experiment with the results which have been obtained that the Field Day has been planned by the college.

The program will begin at 11 o'clock in the morning. Addresses will be given by prominent men from State College, including Dr. Edwin E. Sparks, President of the Pennsylvania State College; Dr. R. L. Watts, Dean of the School of Agriculture; Professor F. D. Gardner, head of the Department of Agronomy; Professor W. H. Tomhave, head of the Department of Animal Husbandry; Professor J. W. White, of the Department of Experimental Agronomy.

Go and take your family and your neighbors and see and hear what State College is attempting to do through these soil and fertilizer experiments.

Mrs. Henney's Millinery Opening.

Thursday and Friday, October 5 and 6, are the days set for the millinery opening at Mrs. Lucy Henney's store in Centre Hall. Having recently returned from Philadelphia with an exceptionally pretty and stylish assortment of fall and winter headwear, she is prepared to suit the most exacting at moderate cost.

Something nice for the small girl as well as for the miss.

Don't forget the days—Thursday and Friday of this week.

The defeat of President Wilson would be an invitation to war. It can mean nothing else.

A political leadership which offers nothing in place of these things but an ill-defined policy of change may be able to substitute war for peace, panic for prosperity, agitation for contentment, reaction for progress, and privilege and greed for justice and humanity, but it can do nothing else; in fact, it is precluded by its own argument and by the circumstances from doing anything else.

Stand by President Wilson.

STUDENTS FIND DEAD BODY OF MISSING BOALSBURG WOMAN.

Mrs. John Woods, Aged 68 Years, Wanders from Home and Believed to Have Perished During Hard Rain Thursday Night—Had Lost Her Reason.

The lifeless body of Mrs. John Woods, who wandered away from her home near Boalsburg on Thursday afternoon, was found by Prof. Dr. Dye, of Pennsylvania State College, who with a number of students and citizens of Boalsburg scoured the mountains on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Woods, for the past four years, were making their home with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Klinger, who reside only a short distance from the old Woods home. Mrs. Woods, several years ago, became a nervous wreck and lost her reason. Since that time she periodically wandered through the woods, being seen often times at the old home in Reitz's Gap. Her actions were always child-like and she busied herself with "playing dishes." No attempt was made to keep her home for she always returned before the close of the day.

Last Thursday afternoon she left the Klinger home and was seen a short distance away by a former acquaintance who spoke to her. Not returning at night fears were entertained for her safety but owing to Mrs. Klinger's absence from home and to the fact that Mr. Woods was too feeble to search for her, no effort was made to locate her until Saturday morning when a trip was made to Boalsburg and the citizens notified. A search was at once instituted but no trace was found of the missing woman, although the field in which she was later discovered was gone over by the men and a number of girls had plucked flowers in the same field which lay to the foot of the mountain. The search was resumed on Sunday and just before the noon hour the efforts of the searching party were rewarded. The dead woman was lying face downward in a ditch among the weeds and judging by her condition she had lain out in the open during the heavy rains of Thursday night and all day Friday. Her clothing was soaked by the rain. It is supposed that she fell into the ditch and owing to her feeble condition was unable to raise herself, and died of exposure.

Deceased was Mary Ellen Kuhn, daughter of Joseph and Mary Ann Kuhn. She was born in Harris township and resided in that section all her life. Her husband and five children survive, namely: John, of Shingletown; Joshua, of Reedsville; Mrs. Ada Reed, of Milroy; Mrs. Margaret Cramer, of Aaronsburg, and Mrs. Emma Klinger.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning, conducted by Rev. S. C. Stover, and interment made in the family lot in the Boalsburg cemetery.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Annie Miller, widow of D. L. Miller, was found dead at her home in Pine Grove Mills on Saturday evening at five o'clock, by a neighbor, Mrs. J. E. Williams, who made daily calls upon Mrs. Miller, who lived alone. Upon entering the home Mrs. Williams found her neighbor in a reclining position on the sofa, fork in hand. She had been in the act of preparing her evening meal when she was apparently stricken with neuralgia of the heart and seated herself on the sofa, close to the stove.

Deceased was a daughter of Jeremiah and Susan (Dale) Tressler and was born at Linden Hall sixty-one years ago. January 1st, 1881, she was married to David L. Miller, who died Nov. 11, 1906. The surviving brothers and sister are R. Tressler, of Madisonburg; George, of Penns Cave; and Mrs. John Neese, of Jacksonville. Four step children also survive. She was a faithful member of the Lutheran church and an earnest worker in all its branches. She was a most efficient nurse and it was while on such a mission that she was taken ill. Thus another soldier's widow was called home. Burial was made by the side of her husband in the cemetery Tuesday afternoon, her pastor, Rev. N. L. Fleck, officiating.

Israel Young, a Civil war veteran, died at his home east of Boalsburg, Sunday morning, after a year's illness with kidney trouble and complications. He was born in Lebanon county seventy-six years ago, and was the son of David and Zippora Young. Early in life he came with his parents to Boalsburg, where he learned the occupation of gunsmith from his father.

In the war of the Rebellion he served bravely as a member of the 49th regiment, Pa. volunteers.

He was married to Miss Ellen Leitzell, who survives with ten children, three others having died some years ago: Charles, of Nelson, Neb.; Calvin and Harry, of Freeport, Ill.; Frank, of Shady Bend, Kas.; Thomas, of Arizona; William B. of Boalsburg; Mrs. Clara Straw, of Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Helen Roan, of Williamsport; Leitzell and Mrs. Ruth Russell, at home. A number of grandchildren and the following sisters also survive: Mrs. Mary Brouse, Pine Grove Mills; Mrs. Harriet Steele, Bellefonte, and Mrs. Sara Williams, Lemont.

Funeral services will be held this (Thursday) morning in the Lutheran church, burial at Boalsburg. Rev. G. L. Courtney will officiate.

Mrs. Anna Catherine Mehaffey, wife of Thomas J. Mehaffey and mother of Clyde Dutrow, east of this place, died at her home in Altoona, Sunday morning, from leucenis, after an illness of three months, superinduced by a fall on July 4th. She fell down a flight of stairs and injured several arteries in her wrist. She had almost recovered from the injuries when complications set in and terminated in her demise. Deceased was the daughter of Peter and Sarah Lauck and was born at Pine Hall, Centre county, on October 12, 1853, and had she lived until Tuesday of next week would have reached the age of sixty-three years. She was a member of the Third Presbyterian church of Altoona and an earnest Christian woman. She was held in respect and esteem by all who shared her acquaintance. She was twice married and is survived by her husband and these children: Clyde Dutrow, of Centre Hall; P. L. Dutrow, of Altoona; Mrs. W. H. Crocker, of San Pedro, Cal.; Mrs. I. K. Dixon, of Johnstown; Mrs. J. W. Bromley, of British India, and Mrs. G. W. Richards, at home. She is also survived by the following brothers and sisters: D. F. and Adam Lauck, of State College; William, of Snow Shoe, and Mrs. W. A. Daugherty, of Tyrone. Eighteen grandchildren and one great-grandchild survive. Funeral services were conducted at the late home on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock by her pastor, Rev. James E. Irvine, Ph. D. Interment was made in Rose Hill cemetery.

Daniel Rinesmith died in the Bellefonte hospital Thursday night from exhaustion due to an attempt to lead home an unruly cow which he had purchased a day previous. Owing to his weight of years, being close to eighty-five, the task was more than he could endure and resulted in his death.

About twenty years ago Mr. Rinesmith occupied the farm now owned by Albert Spayd, at Earlystown.

Two sons and a daughter survive. Burial was made at Bellefonte Monday morning.

Samuel J. Havice, father of Mrs. John Burkholder, of Centre Hill, died at Siglerville, Mifflin County, last Wednesday, and was buried near Milroy on Friday. Three sons and three daughters survive.

Fractured Her Hip in a Fall.

Mrs. Daniel C. Bohn, of near Boalsburg, was the victim of a peculiar accident, resulting in a most painful injury, last Thursday noon at the home of her brother, John Wert, near Tusseyville. Mrs. Bohn had driven to the Wert home in company with her son, Wert Bohn, and her mother, who was returning to the home of her son after a short visit at the Bohn place. Upon leaving the farm a heavy gate at the end of a long lane had to be opened in order to pass onto the public road and in driving the horse through Mrs. Bohn walked by the side of the buggy, holding the lines. In some manner she tripped and fell to the ground which was quite stony. With great effort she raised herself from the ground and managed to work herself into the buggy. She was suffering intense pain and long before reaching her home her cries brought her husband to her side. After reaching the home a doctor was summoned who after an examination discovered a severe fracture of the hip. Drs. Kidder and Woods set the bone on Thursday evening and on Saturday afternoon Mrs. Bohn was removed to the Bellefonte hospital where an x-ray examination was made on Tuesday.

Rebersburg Citizen Stricken.

Howard Miller, aged sixty-five years, and a citizen of Rebersburg, was stricken with paralysis on Saturday while at Aaronsburg where he had gone to have his automobile repaired preparatory to making a trip to Pittsburgh with his wife to spend the winter with their son. He has since been in an unconscious condition and the attending physician entertains small hopes for his recovery.

Dr. Wolfe Buys Luse Home.

Mrs. Daniel F. Luse transferred her residence property to Dr. L. E. Wolfe, who moved here from Quincy a few weeks ago and occupied the residence. The deal was consummated on Friday, the consideration being $2500.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS

No court this week.

Mrs. D. F. Luse spent several days last week at the George W. Ocker home in Lewisburg.

To-day (Thursday) and to-morrow are the opening days for the fall millinery showing at Mrs. Lucy Henney's millinery store.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Cook Hubler drove to Lock Haven last week, remaining for a day with their son, Harry F. Hubler, and wife.

Mrs. H. E. Shadle, of Charleston, West Virginia, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bradford for the greater part of last week.

The apple crop throughout Penns Valley is far below normal. Orchards which yielded from 600 to 800 bushels last year will run from forty to fifty per cent. of that this fall.

Penn State and Bucknell have buried the hatchet and have resumed athletic relations. The two colleges will clash on State's gridiron on Saturday for football supremacy.

William A. Magee, who spent the past three weeks with his family at the Huyett home, returned to his work at the Customs House, Philadelphia, on Monday. Mrs. Magee and son Huyett will remain for some time longer.

The first three days of this week the people about Milroy enjoyed a Lyceum festival, conducted by the Swarthmore Chautauqua Association. The program, judging from the literature, afforded the Mifflin county people three truly joyous days.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Shaeffer, of Altoona, were guests at the Lanson Burris home, west of Centre Hall, from Saturday until Monday, Mrs. Shaeffer being a sister of Mrs. Burris. Other relatives at the Burris home on Saturday were Mrs. Calvin Burris and granddaughter, Madaline Burris, of Axemann.

Maurice and Harris Fromm, the young State College clothing merchants, were severely injured in an auto wreck near Tyrone, Sunday a week ago. In turning out for another car their own machine was ditched and both thrown out, the former receiving a broken rib besides being rendered unconscious.

The Millheim Water company evidently has given up the idea of selling the water plant to the borough, says the Journal, for bids have been asked by the company for 8-inch pipes to replace the 4-inch main from the reservoir to the diamond. There is a likelihood of the change being made this fall, and not later than early spring.

The state road leading from Pleasant Gap to Lemont was put into good repair the past week by William G. Rossman, who looks after that end of the work. Possibly no state road in many miles is subjected to heavier traffic than this one, and the big transportation busses continually passing back and forth have been a big factor in wearing off the smooth top surface.

Mrs. William Bressler and son, Ernest, of Potters Mills, spent Thursday in Centre Hall visiting friends. Ernest, aged about ten years, met with a painful accident a few days previous when he was shot through the left hand when he and an older brother were playing with an old revolver which they found at home. The weapon was loaded, unknown to the boys, and in their boy-like examination the gun was discharged, the bullet hitting the younger lad in the hand.

One of the really new things Millheim residents can boast of is the "Millheim Inn," conducted by Mr. Gephart. The building, faced with native mountain stone, is pretty in design and quite in contrast with the other handsome business block nearby. The arrangement of the interior on all of the three floors is ideal for the purpose intended, and the furnishings in keeping with the whole. In his venture, Mr. Gephart should have and apparently does have the best wishes and support of the business people and residents.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McClenahan and the former's mother, Mrs. Anna McClenahan, of Potters Mills, enjoyed a good dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Horner, near Tusseyville, on Sunday, following which Mr. McClenahan reciprocated by taking all on a delightful auto trip up the valley to near Tyrone, returning by way of Centre Hall, where a brief stop was made at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Bailey. The big commodious Paige car carried the following: Mr. and Mrs. McClenahan, Mrs. Anna McClenahan, Mr. and Mrs. Orvis Horner, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Horner and daughter, Miss Grace, and Charles Fye.

Got Something You Want to Sell?

Most people have a piece of furniture, a farm implement, or something else which they have discarded and which they no longer want.

These things are put in the attic, or stored away in the barn, or left lying about, getting of less and less value each year.

WHY NOT SELL THEM?

ASKS MANY QUESTIONS

DEMOCRATIC TEXT BOOK PUTS 21 QUERIES TO HUGHES.

Demands He Tell What He Would Have Done in Wilson's Place and Calls for Definite Stand on the Future.

Charles Evans Hughes, Republican nominee for president, is called upon to answer 21 leading and pertinent questions asking specifically what he would have done had he been in President Wilson's shoes during the latter's administration, and, if elected, what he would do in the future relative to critical problems which he has evaded or ignored in his public utterances. Following is the list of questions as they appear in the Democratic textbook:

1. Do you favor repeal of the federal reserve act passed by a Democratic congress, recommended and approved by President Wilson, under which the danger of financial panics is forever banished from the United States?

2. Would you have protested against the violation of Belgian neutrality and have backed the protest by plunging America into the European carnival of slaughter?

3. Do you favor repeal of the rural credits act, passed by a Democratic congress, recommended and approved by President Wilson, which gives long-term credit at interest rates that promise an annual saving of $150,000,000 to the farmers?

4. Would you have recognized Victoriano Huerta as president of Mexico?

5. Do you favor repeal of the Clayton antitrust act, passed by a Democratic congress and approved by President Wilson, which overthrew the principle that the labor of a human being is a mere commodity of commerce?

6. Will you, Mr. Hughes, recommend, and will the Republican party in congress support a law establishing universal compulsory military service in the United States?

7. Do you advocate repeal of the federal trade commission act, passed by a Democratic congress, recommended and approved by President Wilson, which has given so much assistance to legitimate business enterprise and under which adequate protection against unfair competition is provided?

8. Mr. Hughes, would you have tried the policy of diplomatic negotiation as a means of summoning the moral force of law and neutral opinion to stop Germany's illegal use of submarines?

9. Do you favor repeal of the "porkless" good roads act, passed by a Democratic congress and approved by President Wilson, for the development of rural highways?

10. Would you, Mr. Hughes, have broken relations with Germany and sent our young men by the hundreds of thousands to nameless graves at the bottom of the Atlantic, or in Flanders, before the policy of diplomatic negotiation had had thorough trial?

11. Will you undertake to repeal the income tax, passed by a Democratic congress, recommended and approved by President Wilson, which places a just share of the burden of taxation upon those best able to bear it?

12. Do you favor violating neutrality and risking the future safety of your country by placing an embargo on munitions of war?

13. Do you favor repeal of the agricultural extension act, passed by a Democratic congress, recommended and approved by President Wilson, which for the first time provides facilities for carrying direct to the farmer practical scientific knowledge of how to increase the profits of his farm?

14. Do you favor intervention in Mexico?

15. Do you advocate repeal of the grain standards and warehouse acts, passed by a Democratic congress, recommended and approved by President Wilson, which aid commerce in the great staple cereals and enable owners of stored agricultural products to secure loans on warehouse receipts on better terms?

16. What is your attitude toward the disloyalists of your party who have attempted to prevent the enforcement by President Wilson, both on the part of the American government and by all American citizens, of an honest neutrality toward all the warring nations of Europe?

17. Inasmuch as the largest amount collected in any one year under the highest tariff ever enacted (Payne-Aldrich act) was $333,000,000, what form of taxation would you substitute to pay a 'preparedness' cost of $630,000,000?

18. Do you favor the reactionary Republican plan of granting huge subsidies to favored corporations, money collected from the people by taxation, as the best way of encouraging the development of an American merchant marine?

19. Do you favor repeal of the child-labor law, the anti-injunction law, the seaman's act and related social justice measures of high importance, passed by a Democratic congress and recommended by President Wilson?

20. Do you favor re-enactment of the Payne-Aldrich act, which betrayed your party's campaign pledge of 1908, and which has been repudiated by many Republican and all progressive leaders?

21. Do you stand with those Progressives and progressive Republicans in congress who voted for practically all the progressive measures mentioned above, or do you stand with the reactionary Republicans who voted against them?

Michigan Moose for Wilson.

The turning over of the Michigan Progressive party to Woodrow Wilson by formal resolution of Michigan Moose leaders, including Charles F. Hoffman, who was chairman of the speaker's bureau of the National Progressive party and secretary of the Michigan state central committee in 1912, chairman of the Michigan central committee of the National Progressive party, is considered the forerunner of similar action in other states.

The resolution, which was passed at an enthusiastic meeting at the Hotel Statler in Detroit attended by delegates from all over Michigan who paid their own expenses, concludes with the following significant words:

"We believe it our duty to take an active part in the approaching national campaign, and to this end we favor the organization of congressional and county National Progressive party committees for the election of Woodrow Wilson."

A state district committee selected by the officers of the organization to work actively for the re-election of President Wilson was indorsed unanimously.

Pettifogging.

Mr. Hughes thinks that the claim made for President Wilson that he kept us out of war is a false one because our marines seized upon Vera Cruz, and "that was war, very ignoble war." The man who says this was once an associate justice of the United States Supreme court and trusted to pass upon the greatest issues of right over the concern of men, while his argument against Wilson is distinctly pettifogging.—Mobile Register.

Hughes as a Voter.

For six years Candidate Hughes has not even taken the trouble to vote. Peculiar and discreditable conditions made him the nominee of his party for president.—Greenville, O., Advocate.

Too Obvious to Be Overlooked.

The Republican organization feels that Mr. Hughes' western tour has been a failure. Even political organizations sometimes recognize the obvious.

STATE CAPITAL

Harrisburg—

With a better understanding of the State of Pennsylvania, both from an agricultural and scenic viewpoint, and with a well-defined conviction that the farmers of the State know that both the Highway and Agricultural Departments of the State government stand ready to aid them in their advancement, the one hundred-odd persons who have been touring the State with Governor Brumbaugh arrived home.

"I am convinced that the tours just completed have been of great service to the farmers of the State," Secretary Charles E. Patten, of the Department of Agriculture, commented, "I noticed while home last week that the farmers already know that we stand willing to help them, and they soon will begin coming to us for help in mastering the problems which confront them more than ever before.

"I hope we may extend this message of co-operation to other sections of the Commonwealth," he continued.

Commissioner Frank B. Black, of the Department of Agriculture, said he believed the tour would be of great service to the people in educating them in the doctrine of good roads.

The Governor spoke at Belleville, Lewistown, where the women interested in the hospital there served luncheon; Mifflintown, Newport and New Bloomfield. He urged the election of members of the Legislature who would support the administration program. He was accorded the same receptions that have been the rule throughout the trip.

The Governor was elated by the apparent success of the three tours. He was in the best of spirits, "never tired from beholding the beauties of this fair State." He concurred in all that his department chiefs had said relative to enlightening the farmer of the fact that there are in Harrisburg men who will co-operate with the individual who seeks to be aided in any manner, shape or form.

Old Man Sheridan has been storming madly after hearing of his daughter's marriage to Lamhorn, the profligate, in New York. He is trying to bend the will of his son Bibbs.

"By the way," interposed Gurney, "didn't Mrs. Sheridan tell me that Bibbs warned you Edith would marry Lamhorn in New York?"

Sheridan went completely to pieces: He swore, while his wife screamed and stopped her ears. And as he swore he pounded the table with his wounded hand, and when the doctor, after storming at him ineffectively, sprang to catch and protect that hand, Sheridan wrenched it away, tearing the bandage. He hammered the table till it leaped.

"Fool!" he panted, choking. "If he's shown gumption enough to guess right the first time in his life, it's enough for me to begin learnin' him on!" And, struggling with the doctor, he leaned toward Bibbs, thrusting forward his convulsed face, which was deathly pale. "My name ain't Tracy, I tell you!" he screamed, hoarsely. "You give in, you stubborn fool! I've had my way with you before, and I'll have my way with you now!"

Bibbs' face was as white as his father's. "No. You can't have your way," he said. And then, obeying a significant motion of Gurney's head, he went out quickly, leaving them struggling.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Mrs. Sheridan, in a wrapper, noiselessly opened the door of her husband's room at daybreak the next morning, and peered within the darkened chamber. At the "old" house they had shared a room, but the architect had chosen to separate them at the new, and they had not known how to formulate an objection, although to both of them something seemed vaguely reprehensible in the new arrangement.

Sheridan did not stir, and she was withdrawing her head from the aperture when he spoke.

"Oh, I'm awake! Come in, if you want to, and shut the door."

She came and sat by the bed. "I woke up thinkin' about it," she explained. "And the more I thought about it the surer I got I must be right, and I knew you'd be tormentin' yourself if you was awake, so—well, you got plenty other troubles, but I'm just sure you ain't goin' to have the worry with Bibbs it looks like."

"No. You Can't Have Your Way."

"You bet I ain't!" he grunted.

"Look how biddable he was about goin' back to the works," she continued. "He's a right good-hearted boy, really, and sometimes I honestly have to say he seems right smart, too. Now and then he'll say something sounds right bright. 'Course, most always it doesn't, and a good deal of the time, when he says things, why, I have to feel glad we haven't got company, because they'd think he didn't have any gumption at all. Yet, look at the way he did when Jim—when Jim got hurt. He took right hold o' things. And Doctor Gurney says he's got brains, and you can't deny but what the doctor's right considerable of a man. He acts sleepy, but that's only because he's got such a large practice—he's a pretty wide-awake kind of a man some ways. Well, what he says last night about Bibbs—that's what I got to thinkin' about. You heard him, papa; he says, 'Bibbs 'll be a bigger business man than what Jim and Roscoe was put together—if he ever wakes up,' he says. Wasn't that exactly what he says?"

"I suppose so," said Sheridan, without exhibiting any interest. "Gurney's crazier 'n Bibbs, but if he wasn't—if what he says was true—what of it?"

"Listen, papa. Just suppose Bibbs took it into his mind to get married. You know where he goes all the time—"

"Oh, Lord, yes!" Sheridan turned over in the bed, his face to the wall, leaving visible of himself only the thick grizzle of his hair. "You better go back to sleep. He runs over there—every minute she'll let him, I suppose. Go back to bed. There's nothin' in it."

"Why ain't there?" she urged. "I know better—there is, too! You wait and see. There's just one thing in the world that'll wake the sleepiest young man alive up—yes, and make him jump up—and I don't care who he is or how sound asleep it looks like he is. That's when he takes it into his head to pick out some girl and settle down and have a home and children of his own. Then, I guess, he'll go out after the money! You'll see. Now, I don't say that Bibbs has got the idea in his head yet—'er else he wouldn't be talkin' that fool-talk about nine dollars a week bein' good enough for him to live on. But it's comin', papa, and he'll jump for whatever you want to hand him out. He will! And I can tell you this much, too: he'll want all the salary and stock he can get hold of, and he'll hustle to keep gettin' more. That girl's the kind that a young husband just goes crazy to give things to! She's pretty and fine-lookin', and things look nice on her, and I guess she'd like to have 'em about as well as the next. And I guess she isn't gettin' many these days, either, and she'll be pretty ready for the change. I saw her with her sleeves rolled up at the kitchen window the other day, and Jackson told me yesterday their cook left two weeks ago, and they haven't tried to hire another one. He says her and her mother been doin' the housework a good while, and now they're doin' the cookin', too. 'Course Bibbs wouldn't know that unless she's told him, and I reckon she wouldn't; she's kind o' stiffish-lookin', and Bibbs is too up in the clouds to notice anythink like that for himself. They've never asked him to a meal in the house, but he wouldn't notice that, either—he's kind of innocent. Now I was thinkin'—you know, I don't suppose we've hardly mentioned the girl's name at table since Jim went, but it seems to me maybe if—"

Sheridan flung out his arms, uttering a sound half groan, half yawn. "You're barkin' up the wrong tree! Go on back to bed, mamma!"

"Why am I?" she demanded, crossly. 'Why am I barkin' up the wrong tree?"

"Because you are. There's nothin' in it."

"I'll bet you," she said, rising—"I'll bet you he goes to church with her this morning. What you want to bet?"

"Go back to bed," he commanded. "I know what I'm talkin' about; there's nothin' in it, I tell you."

She shook her head perplexedly. "Then—do you know something about it that you ain't told me?"

"Yes, I do," he grunted. "Now go on. Maybe I can get a little sleep. I ain't had any yet!"

"Well—" She went to the door, her expression downcast. "I thought maybe—but—" She coughed prefatorily. "Oh, papa, something else I wanted to tell you. I was talkin' to Roscoe over the phone last night when the telegram came, so I forgot to tell you, but—well, Sibyl wants to come over this afternoon. They expect to get off by the end o' the week, and I reckon she wants to feel she's done what she could to kind o' make up. Anyway, that's what he said. But what I thought was, no use bein' rough with her, papa—I expect she's suffered a good deal—and I don't think we'd ought to be, on Roscoe's account. You'll—you'll be kind o' polite to her, won't you, papa?"

He mumbled something which was smothered under the coverlet he had pulled over his head.

"What?" she said, timidly. "I was just sayin' I hoped you'd treat Sibyl all right when she comes, this afternoon. You will, won't you, papa?"

He threw the coverlet off furiously. "I presume so!" he roared.

She departed guiltily.

But if he had accepted her proffered wager that Bibbs would go to church with Mary Vertrees that morning, Mrs. Sheridan would have lost. They meant to go to church. But it happened that they were attentively preoccupied in a conversation as they came to the church; and they had gone an incredible number of blocks beyond it before they discovered their error. However, feeling that they might be embarrassingly late if they returned, they decided that a walk would make them as good. It was a windless winter morning, with an inch of crisp snow over the ground. So they walked, and for the most part they were silent, but on their way home, after they had turned back at noon, they began to be talkative again.

"Mary," said Bibbs, after a time, "am I a sleep-walker?"

She laughed a little, then looked grave. "Does your father say you are?"

"Yes—when he's in a mood to flatter me. Other times, other names. He has quite a list."

"You mustn't mind," she said, gently. "He's been getting some pretty severe shocks. What you've told me makes me pretty sorry for him, Bibbs. I've always been sure he's very big."

"Yes. Big and—blind. He's like a Hercules without eyes and without any consciousness except that of his strength and of his purpose to grow stronger. Stronger for what? For nothing."

"Are you sure, Bibbs? It can't be for nothing; it must be stronger for something, even though he doesn't know what it is. Perhaps what he and his kind are struggling for is something so great they couldn't see it—so great none of us could see it."

"No, he's just like some blind, unconscious thing heaving underground—"

"Till he breaks through and leaps out into the daylight," she finished for him, cheerily.

"Into the smoke," said Bibbs. "Look at the powder of coal-dust already dirtying the decent snow, even though it's Sunday. That's from the little pigs; the big ones aren't so bad, on Sunday! There's a fleck of soot on your cheek. Some pig sent it out into the air; he might as well have thrown it on you. It would have been braver, for then he'd have taken his chance of my whipping him for it if I could."

"Is there soot on my cheek, Bibbs? Is there?"

"Is there? There are soot on your cheeks, Mary—a fleck on each. One landed since I mentioned the first."

She halted immediately, giving him her handkerchief, and he succeeded in transferring most of the black from her face to the cambric. They were entirely matter-of-course about it.

An elderly couple, it chanced, had been walking behind Bibbs and Mary for the last block or so, and passed ahead during the removal of the soot. "There!" said the elderly wife. "You're always wrong when you begin guessing about strangers. Those two young people aren't honeymooners at all—they've been married for years. A blind man could see that."

"I wish I knew who threw that soot on you," said Bibbs, looking up at the neighboring chimneys, as they went on. "They arrest children for throwing snowballs at the street cars, but—"

"But they don't arrest street cars for shaking all the pictures in the houses crooked every time they go by. Nor for the uproar they make. I wonder what's the cost in nerves for the noise of the city each year. Yes, we pay the price for living in a 'growing town,' whether we have money to pay or none."

"Who is it gets the pay?" said Bibbs.

"Not I!" she laughed.

"Nobody gets it. There isn't any pay; there's only money. And only some of the men down town get much of that. That's what my father wants me to get."

"Yes," she said, smiling to him, and nodding. "And you don't want it, and you don't need it."

"But you don't think I'm a sleep-walker, Mary?" He had told her of his father's new plans for him, though he had not described the vigor and picturesqueness of their setting forth. "You think I'm right?"

"A thousand times!" she cried. "There aren't so many happy people in this world, I think—and you say you've found what makes you happy. If it's a dream—keep it!"

"The thought of going down there—into the money shuffle—I hate it as I never hated the shop!" he said. "I hate it! And the city itself, the city that the money shuffle has made—just look at it! And the dirt and the ugliness and the rush and the noise aren't the worst of it; it's what the dirt and ugliness and rush and noise mean—that's the worst! The outward things are insufferable, but they're only the expression of a spirit—a blind embryo of a spirit, not yet a soul—oh, just greed! And this 'go ahead' nonsense! Oughtn't it all to be a fellowship? I shouldn't want to get ahead if I could—I'd want to help the other fellow to keep up with me."

"I read something the other day and remembered it for you," said Mary. "It was something Burne-Jones said of a picture he was going to paint: 'In the first picture I shall make a man walking in the street of a great city, full of all kinds of happy life; children, and lovers walking, and ladies leaning from windows all down great lengths of street leading to the city walls; and there the gates are wide open, letting in a space of green field and cornfield in harvest; and all round his head a great rain of swirling autumn leaves blowing from a little walled graveyard.'"

"And if I painted," Bibbs returned, "I'd paint a lady walking in the street of a great city, full of all kinds of uproarious and futile life—children being taught only how to make money, and lovers hurrying to get richer, and ladies who'd given up trying to wash their windows clean, and the gates of the city wide open, letting in slums and slaughter houses and freight yards, and all round this lady's head a great rain of swirling soot—" He paused, adding, thoughtfully: "And yet I believe I'm glad that soot got on your cheek. It was just as if I were your brother—the way you gave me your handkerchief to rub it off for you. Still, Edith never—"

"Didn't she?" said Mary, as he paused again.

"No. And I—" He contented himself with shaking his head instead of offering more definite information. Then he realized that they were passing the new house, and he sighed profoundly. "Mary, our walk's almost over."

She looked as blank. "So it is, Bibbs."

They said no more until they came to her gate. As they drifted slowly to a stop, the door of Roscoe's house opened, and Roscoe came out with

They Were Entirely Matter-of-Course About It.

Sibyl, who was startlingly pale. She seemed little enfeebled by her illness, however, walking rather quickly at her husband's side and not taking his arm. The two crossed the street without appearing to see Mary and her companion, and, entering the new house, were lost to sight. Mary gazed after them gravely, but Bibbs, looking at Mary, did not see them.

"Mary," he said, "you seem very serious. Is anything bothering you?"

"No, Bibbs." And she gave him a bright, quick look that made him instantly unreasonably happy.

"I know you want to go in—" he began.

"No. I don't want to."

"I mustn't keep you standing here, and I mustn't go in with you—but—I just wanted to say—I've seemed very stupid to myself this morning, grumbling about soot and all that—while all the time I—Mary, I think it's been the very happiest of all the hours you've given me. I do. And—I don't know just why—but it's seemed to me that it was one I'd always remember. And you," he added, falteringly, "you look so—so beautiful today!"

"It must have been the soot on my cheek, Bibbs."

"Mary, will you tell me something?" he asked.

"I think I will."

"It's something I've had a lot of theories about, but none of them ever just fits. You used to wear furs in the fall, but now it's so much colder, you don't—you never wear them at all any more. Why don't you?"

Her eyes fell for a moment, and she grew red. Then she looked up gayly. "Bibbs, if I tell you the answer will you promise not to ask any more questions?"

"Yes. Why did you stop wearing them?"

"Because I found I'd be warmer without them!" She caught his hand quickly in her own for an instant, laughed into his eyes, and ran into the house.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

It is the consoling attribute of unused books that their decorative warmth will so often make even a readymade library the actual "living room" of a family to whom the shelved volumes are indeed sealed. Thus it was with Sheridan, who read nothing except newspapers, business letters and figures; who looked upon books as he looked upon bric-a-brac or crocheting—when he was at home, and not abed or eating, he was in the library.

He stood in the many-colored light of the stained-glass window at the far end of the long room, when Roscoe and his wife came in, and he exhaled a solemnity. His deference to the Sabbath was manifest, as always, in the length of his coat and the closeness of his Saturday-night shave; and his expression, to match this religious pomp, was more than Sabbatical, but the most dismaying of his demonstrations was his keeping his hand in his sling.

Sibyl advanced to the middle of the room and halted there, not looking at him, but down at her muff, in which, it could be seen, her hands were nervously moving. Roscoe went to a chair in another part of the room. There was a deadly silence.

But Sibyl found a shaky voice, after an interval of gulping, though she was unable to lift her eyes, and the darkling lids continued to veil them. She spoke hurriedly, like an ungifted child reciting something committed to memory, but her sincerity was none the less evident for that.

"Father Sheridan, you and mother Sheridan have always been so kind to me, and I would hate to have you think I don't appreciate it, from the way I acted. I've come to tell you I am sorry for the way I did that night, and to say I know as well as anybody the way I behaved, and it will never happen again, because it's been a pretty hard lesson; and when we come back, some day, I hope you'll see that you've got a daughter-in-law you never need to be ashamed of again. I want to ask you to excuse me for the way I did, and I can say I haven't any feelings toward Edith now, but only wish her happiness and good in her new life. I thank you for all your kindness to me, and I know I made a poor return for it, but if you can overlook the way I behaved I know I would feel a good deal happier—and I know Roscoe would, too. I wish to promise not to be as foolish in the future, and the same error would never occur again to make us all so unhappy, if you can be charitable enough to excuse it this time."

He looked steadily at her without replying, and she stood before him, never lifting her eyes; motionless, save where the moving fur proved the agitation of her hands within the muff.

"All right," he said, at last.

She looked up then with vast relief, though there was a revelation of heavy tears when the eyelids lifted.

"Thank you," she said. "There's something else—about something different—I want to say to you, but I want mother Sheridan to hear it, too."

"She's upstairs in her room," said Sheridan. "Roscoe—"

Sibyl interrupted. She had just seen Bibbs pass through the hall and begin to ascend the stairs; and in a flash she instinctively perceived the chance for precisely the effect she wanted.

"No, let me go," she said. "I want to speak to her a minute first, anyway."

And she went away quickly, gaining the top of the stairs in time to see Bibbs enter his room and close the door. Sibyl knew that Bibbs, in his room, had overheard her quarrel with Edith in the hall outside; for bitter Edith, thinking the more to shame her, had subsequently informed her of the circumstance. Sibyl had just remembered this, and with the recollection there had flashed the thought—out of her own experience—that people are often much more deeply impressed by words they overhear than by words directly addressed to them. Sibyl intended to make it impossible for Bibbs not to overhear. She did not hesitate—her heart was not with the old sore, and she believed wholly in the justice of her cause and in the truth of what she was going to say. Fate was virtuous at times; it had delivered into her hands the girl who had affronted her.

Mrs. Sheridan was in her own room. The approach of Sibyl and Roscoe had driven her from the library, for she had miscalculated her husband's mood, and she felt that if he used his injured hand as a mark of emphasis again, in her presence, she would (as she thought of it) "have a fit right there." She heard Sibyl's step, and pretended to be putting a touch to her hair before a mirror.

"I was just coming down," she said, as the door opened.

"Yes, he wants you to," said Sibyl. "It's all right, mother Sheridan. He's forgiven me."

Mrs. Sheridan sniffed instantly; tears appeared. She kissed her daughter-in-law's cheek; then, in silence, regarded the mirror afresh, wiped her eyes, and applied powder.

"And I hope Edith will be happy," Sibyl added, inciting more applications of Mrs. Sheridan's handkerchief and powder.

"Yes, yes," murmured the good woman. "We mustn't make the worst of things."

"Well, there was something else I had to say, and he wants you to hear it, too," said Sibyl. "We better go down, mother Sheridan."

She led the way, Mrs. Sheridan following obediently, but, when they came to a spot close to Bibbs' door, Sibyl stopped. "I want to tell you about it first," she said, abruptly. "It isn't a secret, of course, in any way; it's something the whole family has to know, and the sooner the whole family knows it the better. It's something it wouldn't be right for us all not to understand, and of course father Sheridan most of all. But I want to just kind of go over it first with you; it 'll kind of help me to see I got it all straight. I haven't got any reason for saying it except the good of the family, and it's nothing to me, one way or the other, of course, except for that. I oughtn't to 've behaved the way I did that night, and it seems to me if there's anything I can do to help the family, I ought to, because it would help show I felt the right way. Well, what I want to do is to tell this so's to keep the family from being made a fool of. I don't want to see the family just made use of and twisted around her finger by somebody that's got no more heart than so much ice, and just as sure to bring troubles in the long run as—as Edith's mistake is. Well, then, this is the way it is. I'll just tell you how it looks to me and see if it don't strike you the same way."

Within the room, Bibbs, much annoyed, tapped his ear with his pencil. He wished they wouldn't stand talking near his door when he was trying to write. He had just taken from his trunk the manuscript of a poem begun the preceding Sunday afternoon, and he had some ideas he wanted to fix upon paper before they maliciously seized the first opportunity to vanish, for they were but gossamer. Bibbs was pleased with the beginnings of his poem, and if he could carry it through he meant to dare greatly with it—he would venture it upon an editor. For he had his plan of life now; his day would be of manual labor and thinking—he could think of his friend and he could think in cadences for poems, to the crashing of the strong machines—and if his father turned him out of home and out of the works, he would work elsewhere and live elsewhere. His father had the right, and it mattered very little to Bibbs—he faced the prospect of a working man's lodging house without trepidation. He could find a washstand to write upon, he thought; and every evening when he left Mary he would write a little; and he would write on holidays and on Sundays—on Sundays in the afternoon. In a lodging house, at least, he wouldn't be interrupted by his sister-in-law's choosing the immediate vicinity of his door for conversations evidently important to herself, but merely disturbing to him. He frowned plaintively, wishing he could think of one polite way of asking her to go away. But, as she went on, he started violently dropping manuscript and pencil upon the floor.

"I don't know whether you heard it, mother Sheridan," she said, "but this old Vertrees house, next door, has been sold on foreclosure, and all they got out of it was an agreement that lets 'em live there a little longer. Roscoe told me, and he says he heard Mr. Vertrees has been up and down the streets more 'n two years, tryin' to get a job he could call a 'position,' and couldn't land it. You heard anything about it, mother Sheridan?"

"Well, I did know they been doin' their own housework a good while back," said Mrs. Sheridan. "And now they're doin' the cookin', too."

Sibyl sent forth a little titter with a sharp edge. "I hope they find something to cook! She sold her piano mighty quick after Jim died!"

Bibbs jumped up. He was trembling from head to foot and he was dizzy—of all the real things he could never have dreamed in his dream the last would have been what he heard now. He felt that something incredible was happening, and that he was powerless to stop it. It seemed to him that heavy blows were falling upon his head and upon Mary's; it seemed to him that he and Mary were being struck and beaten physically—and that something hideous impended. He wanted to shout to Sibyl to be silent, but he could not; he could only stand, swallowing and trembling.

"What I think the whole family ought to understand is just this," said Sibyl, sharply. "Those people were so hard up that this Miss Vertrees started after Bibbs before they knew whether he was insane or not! They'd got a notion he might be, from his being in a sanitarium, and Mrs. Vertrees asked me if he was insane, the very first day Bibbs took the daughter out auto riding!" She paused a moment, looking at Mrs. Sheridan, but listening intently. There was no sound from within the room.

"No!" exclaimed Mrs. Sheridan.

"It's the truth," Sibyl declared, loudly. "Oh, of course we were all crazy about that girl at first. We were pretty green when we moved up here, and we thought she'd get us in—but it didn't take me long to read her! Her family were down and out when it came to money—and they had to go after it, one way or another, somehow!

NOT PROMISES BROKEN

"I do not doubt that the people of the United States will wish the Democratic party to continue in control of the government. They are not in the habit of rejecting those who have actually served them for those who are making doubtful and conjectural promises of service. Least of all are they likely to substitute those who promised to render them particular services and proved false to that promise for those who have actually rendered those very services."—From President Wilson's Speech of Acceptance.

A Record in Swinging a Grain Cradle.

Rev. D. F. Kurtz has in his possession a clipping narrating the remarkable record of one Michael Cromer, who in July 12, 1858, on a farm near Mercersburg, Franklin county, cut twelve and one-half acres of wheat with a heavy grain cradle, built especially for the champion. The cutting was witnessed by 200 people and the job was done in the time intervening between sun up and sun down. The performance seems almost incredible in view of the fact that a modern binder can cut very little more in a day's time, but the feat was performed as narrated, nevertheless, and was good for a column or more in the Farm Journal at the time.

Rev. Kurtz was personally acquainted with the giant who holds this record.

Triple Wedding Anniversary.

The following article appeared in a recent issue of Topeka (Kansas) State Journal. The Rev. John E. Bright, who is one of the principals in the account, is a native of Aaronsburg, and visited his former home last summer.

"Rev. and Mrs. John E. Bright, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gustafson and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. James held a wedding anniversary celebration Sunday afternoon at the Bright home, 1900 Redden avenue. The anniversary celebration by these three couples is held annually on the seventeenth of September, at the homes of the three families in rotation. The Rev. Mr. Bright is an evangelist, and was chaplain of the house of representatives at the last session of the legislature. He and Mrs. Bright were married in Milton, Pa., in 1868. Mr. Gustafson has held a position with the Crane Publishing company for the past thirty years. His home is at 615 Topeka avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Gustafson were married at Eureka, Kan., in 1884. Mr. James is with the Santa Fe. Mr. and Mrs. James were married at Atchison, Kan., in 1894, and are now living at 310 East Tenth street. The three families met a few years ago at the Lutheran church, and upon learning that their anniversaries fell on the same day, they decided to celebrate together each year. The dinner table at the party was decorated with roses and carnations and the other rooms were adorned with flowers, which were the gift of friends. After the dinner the Rev. Mr. Bright conducted a short religious service."

During the week of October 13th to 18th Bellefonte will have a number of noted orators who will speak in the court house. On Friday, 13th, "Catch-me Pal" Patterson, of England, will be the orator; Tuesday, Oct. 17, the Rev. Anna Shaw will speak; Wednesday, Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, of Georgia, will deliver an address. Lieut. Theodore Davis Boal's Mounted Machine Gun Troop was due to arrive at El Paso, Texas, last Friday, according to a letter received from a member of the troop, mailed at Liberal, Kansas, enroute to the border. The trip from Mt. Gretna to El Paso required more than a week, stops of twelve hours being made at various points to exercise the horses.

The borough schools opened on Monday, the pupils appearing more than anxious to begin the term which was delayed just one month. There was a large enrollment in all the grades, as well as in the High school. The teachers are: Primary, Miss Helen Bartholomew; intermediate, D. Ross Bushman; grammar, Elmer Miller; High school, Prof. W. O. Heckman.

A demented man being conveyed by auto from Clearfield to the Danville asylum showed signs of overpowering the two authorities who were holding him in the rear seat of the car while passing through Centre Hall, Tuesday afternoon, and in order that they might have less trouble on the trip a stop was made at the Boozer harness shop where rope was procured for binding the hands and feet of the maniac.

Mr. Decker has an advertisement inserted in this week's issue of the Reporter. Lovers of good music should invite Mr. Decker to give a demonstration of the instrument in their homes.

Michael Spicher, of Pleasant Gap, proved himself hale and hearty at seventy-two years by walking across Nittany Mountain, through Centre Hall, to his farm, west of town, where he is having a new barn erected to replace the one destroyed by fire a few months ago. After dinner he footed it back, a total of ten miles. Mr. Spicher believes walking one of the best means to longevity and during the delightful days of autumn he remains out doors the greater part of the time.

The borough school board met in regular session on Monday morning and besides approving several bills were confronted with a request from a member of the teaching corps to pay the first month's wages in advance, in view of the fact that the schools were closed during September on account of State Commissioner of Health Dixon's order. The contention of the teacher was that the school code made provision for payment in advance under the circumstances while a member of the board interpreted the code in a different light. No action was taken, which is construed as a refusal of the request.

AN ANTI-CAMPAIGN?

As a candidate Mr. Hughes has not yet come up to expectations. The trouble is that he has not yet told the American people positively and concretely just what he proposes to do if elected President. The American people want to know what constructive program Mr. Hughes has to offer them. They demand of a leader a demonstration of leadership. There is a serious danger that the Republican candidate may become an "anti." And it never pays in this world to be an anti-anything.—The Independent.

LIVING ON YOUR NERVES.

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., LL. D., D. Sc., Commissioner of Health.

Do you live on your nerves? Possibly you do and boast of it as if it was something to be proud of.

Despite ideas to the contrary few people ever work themselves to death. It is usually the combination of business and pleasure at a strenuous pace which does the damage.

It is so easy to go a little further on your nerves when you know that physically you need rest and relaxation. There may be times of stress and strain when it is justifiable to exert every atom of endurance but this is only under special circumstances. To practice it regularly in order to over crowd one's days is certain to result disastrously.

There is much in our modern life with its diversity of interests which tends to excite and irritate the nervous system. We should make an effort to offset this as much as possible. One may find pleasure and diversion without rushing madly about under high pressure.

People who live on their nerves until nervousness becomes chronic find that it brings a train of evils, indigestion, worry, excitability, temper, and restlessness, all great handicaps to efficient work and rational pleasure.

STATE AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

The codling moth is very abundant in orchards that have not been sprayed.

The Baldwin apples throughout the State seem to have been infected by pests and diseases more than any other variety.

Throughout the State greater success has been obtained this year in orchards that were sprayed systematically than for many years.

Dr. J. G. Stover, of Bendersville, Adams County, has sold his apple crop, estimated at 30,000 barrels, to one New York commission house.

Franklin County apple growers report the Jonathan and Gano apples fifty per cent. above last year and the York Imperials almost double. Grimes Golden and Ben Davis are also above the average.

The large peach crop of last year made some growers careless this year and in some sections where a good crop could have been grown there has been only fifty per cent. of an average crop of fair quality.

The Adams County apple crop is about twenty-five per cent. more than last year, but there is some sooty blotch and Baldwin spot. The quality of the apple is better than for some years. One Adams County fruit grower reported a crop of twenty-five carloads of peaches and 6,000 barrels of apples.

A Lancaster butcher was fined $100 and costs on charges of offering unwholesome meats for sale. Agents of the State Livestock Sanitary Board visited the store on six occasions and found unwholesome meats displayed for sale and being prepared for manufacture into sausage.

If you enjoy a good musical comedy don't fail to see "Mother Goose," that comes to Bellefonte Opera House, matinee and night, Saturday, October 7th. Prices, 35c, 50c, 75c, $1.00.

A new method of utilizing coal in competition with oil fuel is being tried at Vancouver. It is said that crushed coal can be supplied to steam-producing furnaces by the same method that oil is utilized. The new process is of special interest to British Columbia, as it is proposed to apply it for smelting purposes in the big mining plants of the province. It is asserted that seven tons of copper ore can be smelted with one ton of coal by this process, whereas formerly the ratio was a ton of coal to a ton of ore.

Russia and Serbia, also Austria, may allow young women to fight in their armies, but Canada will not, although according to a recruiting officer in Winnipeg, several have applied, and two could hardly be kept from joining by force in response to a call for "stenographers for the second service unit of the Nineteenth battalion."

Refining nickel by a new process is reported as having been discovered in Canada. The claim is that 100 pounds of matte can be converted into 50 pounds of metal in 48 hours, and that the low-grade iron ores of the Laurentian hills near Ottawa can be used.

In British Columbia half of the industrial capital is invested in the lumbering and woodworking business, half the pay roll of the provinces is derived from the forests and 37 per cent of the annual wealth production is attributed to the same source.

The geological survey has estimated that the Colorado river in an average year discharged into the gulf of California 338,000,000 tons of silt and salt, equal to 20 tons for each square mile of land the river drains.

For the eight months ending with last February the oversea trade of Australia showed a gain of $88,145,525 when contrasted with the commonwealth's foreign commerce of the previous year.

Because of the war, chicory is selling high in England—at from $125 to $140 a ton, whereas in normal times it can be bought for $35 to $40 a ton.

NO PEACE TALK BY CHANCELLOR

Hollweg Says Allies Can't Pierce German Lines.

U. S. CALLED UNNEUTRAL

Made Theme For Criticism Of Americans With Entente Armies. Chancellor Discourages Peace Talk.

Berlin, via London.—Immediately on the heels of the utterances of the Imperial Chancellor in the Reichstag concerning the submarine campaign the afternoon newspapers generally print strong criticisms of the neutrality of the United States, based on the news of the death of the American aviator, Kiffen Rockwell, and the presence of other American aviators on the western front.

They connect this evidence of American sympathy for the Entente Allies, and the supplying of war materials by firms in the United States as an indication of the futility of concessions to the American standpoint with regard to submarines. They declare that these facts show how American respect for neutrality is vanishing and how America is misusing the present form of submarine warfare to cover the active participation of American citizens in the war on the side of the Entente Allies.

The Lokal Anzeiger, under the heading "American Neutrality," prints the following:

"With a naivete which must appear astonishing, even in a war which overturns ordinary conceptions of international law and neutrality, the Paris Matin announces that Aviator Rockwell, one of the best-known American airmen, has fallen in an air battle. The Matin does not attempt to dispute the fact, long known to us, that at Verdun an aero troop under the name of the American Aviation Squadron participated in the fighting.

Conciliation Misused, Says Paper.

"We all know that, impelled by love of peace and chary of human sacrifices, we made concessions to America, and now see with astonishment that the concessions have resulted only in the further supply of the Entente with ammunition and guns. We now see further how our conciliatory attitude directly has been misused on the American side, and Americans can, therefore, reach the enemy and fill important positions.

"We are acquainted naturally with the love of adventure in the American blood, and we do not condemn it. We also would have no occasion whatever to pay attention to the exercise of this passion, if we had not believed that the concessions to the United States would be sufficient for honorable men to bridle the strongest inclinations to ignore the most natural obligations of neutrality.

"We still believe it will be possible for the American Government to take measures that the concessions made to it shall not undergo usages to which under no circumstances we can submit on the part of American citizens. Such actions can only be regarded as an evasion of our agreement with the union."

Would Use Every Means.

The German Chancellor did not directly discuss the submarine issue in his speech to the Reichstag, the only reference made to it being the declaration that "a German statesman who would hesitate to use against his enemy every available instrument of battle that would shorten this war—such a statesman should be hanged." He also expressed his contempt for those who were circulating reports that all Germany's means of fighting were not being employed to the fullest possible extent. He added that in order to disappoint the enemy, "who is on the watch for every breach of our inner determinations," he would not give details.

Germany will persevere until victory is hers, the Reichstag was told by the Chancellor, according to the full text of his speech. The Chancellor declared that this year's harvest had made Germany's position much more secure than was the case last year.

In his attack upon Great Britain he declared that that country was breaking one international law after another and was above all Germany's "most egotistical, fiercest and most obstinate enemy."

Predicts Lines Will Hold.

The Allies cannot break through the German lines on the Somme, Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg told the Reichstag, making a similar statement in regard to the eastern front.

"The English and French, it is true," he said, "have achieved advantages. Our first lines have been pressed back some kilometres and we have also to deplore heavy losses in men and material. That was inevitable in an offensive on such a mighty scale. But what our enemies hoped to accomplish, namely, break through on a grand scale and roll up our positions, has not been attained. The battle of the Somme will cost further sacrifices. Still another trench and another village may be lost, but they will not get through."

BANDITS' HEAVY LOSS IN BATTLE

Villa Followers Killed in Fight at Cusihuiriachic.

CARRANZISTAS ALSO SUFFER

An Appeal For Surgeons and Medical Supplies Is Made By General Ramos—Baudelio Uribe Is Taken Prisoner.

Chihuahua City, Mexico.—Over a hundred Villa followers were killed, the bandit leader, Baudelio Uribe was taken prisoner and heavy casualties suffered by Carranza forces in a terrific fight at Cusihuiriachic, an important mining center, about 50 miles southwest of Chihuahua City, according to a message received by General Trevino from General Matias Ramos, who was himself slightly wounded.

Details of the fight were few and were appended to the request of General Ramos for surgeons and medical supplies. A hospital corps detachment was accordingly rushed to the scene by train.

It is stated that the garrison at Cusihuiriachic co-operated with the forces of Ramos, but whether they were attacked or had been the aggressors does not appear.

Baudelio Uribe, leader of the band and Villa's chief lieutenant, was the originator of the idea of cutting off the ears of captured government soldiers. Many others of his command are reported to have been made prisoner.

News of the fight was also received here from the telegraph operator to Santa Isabel, who added nothing to the report of General Ramos. The General's official report was sent by way of that town, to which the hospital train has been dispatched.

Santa Isabel is 33 miles by train from Chihuahua. The Mexican Northwestern Railway makes a loop to Cusihuiriachic from Santa Isabel, while the direct distance between the two towns is about 35 miles.

Troops continue to pour into Chihuahua City from the south to participate in the Villa hunt.

HIGH FOOD COST HITS NAVY.

Many Firms, Unable To Meet Contracts, Fail To Bid.

New York.—Bids for food supplies for the United States Navy, just received here, are much higher than those of last year. Some of the items called for, such as beans and corn, are so scarce that many firms which usually bid on these contracts did not compete. Only two firms bid on the string bean contract and offered to fill only part of the order of 500,000 pounds. One firm offered to supply 270,000 pounds for $22,120. The lowest bid for 1,140,000 pounds of canned corn was $85,174, while 2,305,000 pounds of canned tomatoes were offered for $112,945. One of the largest items on the list was 640,000 pounds of canned peaches, which were offered at $51,319.

JAPAN TO REVIVE THE ALIEN ISSUE

To Renew Negotiations With U. S. After European War.

INSISTS ON ENTRY RIGHTS

Tokio Sticks To Position That Restrictions On Immigration and Land Holding Violate International Law.

Washington.—Japan's purpose to renew after the European war her contention for the right of her people to emigrate to and own land in the United States, suggested in New York by Baron Yoshiro Sakatani, former Finance Minister in the Tokio Cabinet, was frankly admitted at the Japanese Embassy. Negotiations over these questions, which came to a deadlock two years ago, are not regarded by Japan as concluded, it was explained, but merely postponed while the larger issues of the war are being dealt with.

The deadlock followed a long series of conferences between former Secretary Bryan and Baron Chinda, then the Japanese Ambassador, and an exchange of notes between the two governments over the alien land legislation enacted by California. After the State Department had pointed out that under its constitution the United States Government could do no more than seek to prevent such legislation and that persons affected by it had recourse to the Federal Courts, Japan closed the exchanges with a note saying her complaint had not been answered and reserving "for the present further discussion of the issue."

It has been generally assumed that the issue would remain in abeyance only while Japan was occupied with the war, but until now no one in a position to speak with authority has said so. There will be no formal discussion of the subject by the Embassy at least until the arrival of the new Ambassador, Dr. Amoro Sato, who was appointed when Baron Chinda was transferred to London, and who is expected in Washington in a few months.

Japan's Dignity Offended.

The position of the Japanese government, according to informal statements by Embassy officials, still is that restrictions on immigration and land holding are not only derogatory to her dignity, but are unjust under international law in that they discriminate against her in favor of other nations. Removal of these restrictions, it is explained, are regarded as Japan's third and final step in her rise to statehood, the first two being the abolition of extra territoriality and the negotiation of commercial equality treaties.

U. S. EXPORTS BREAK RECORD

Half Billion Dollar Mark Passed in August.

IMPORTS SHOW DECREASE

Although a Decline Is Shown In Goods Shipped Into Country, It Was Greater Than Any Previous August.

Washington. — American exports finally have passed the half billion dollar a month mark. Statistics just issued by the Department of Commerce show that goods sent abroad in August were valued at $510,000,000, a record not only for this country but for the world. The total is $35,000,000 above the previous high record, established in May, and $45,000,000 higher than the June figures.

Imports decreased in August, the total of $199,247,381 being $47,000,000 below that of June, the record month. It was greater, however, than the total for any previous August. Exports for the year ended with August aggregated $4,750,000,000 and the imports $2,300,000,000, both totals being far in advance of those for any similar period. Of the August imports 66.5 per cent. entered free of duty, compared with 67.5 per cent. in August a year ago.

The favorable trade balance for August was $311,000,0000 compared with $119,000,000 in August a year ago, and a balance of $19,000,000 in August, 1914, against the United States. For the twelve months ending August 31 the export balance was $2,465,000,000 as against $1,363,000,000 in the preceding year and $374,000,000 two years ago.

The net inward gold movement for August was $29,000,000 and for the year $410,000,000, a record breaker. Last year the net inward gold movement was $146,000,000 and two years ago there was a net outward movement of $95,000,000. Gold imports in August were $41,238,716 against $61,641,191 in August, 1915, and $3,045,219 in August, 1914.

What the Doctor Knows

KIDNEYS MUST BE RIGHT TO INSURE HEALTH.

Few people realize to what extent their health depends upon the condition of the kidneys.

The physician in nearly all cases of serious illness, makes a chemical analysis of the patient's urine. He knows that unless the kidneys are doing their work properly, the other organs cannot readily be brought back to health and strength.

When the kidneys are neglected or abused in any way, serious results are sure to follow. According to health statistics, Bright's Disease, which is really an advanced form of kidney trouble, caused nearly ten thousand deaths in one year, in the State of New York alone. Therefore, it is particularly necessary to pay more attention to the health of these important organs.

An ideal herbal compound that has had remarkable success as a kidney remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

The mild and healing influence of this preparation, in most cases, is soon realized, according to sworn statements and verified testimony of those who have used the remedy.

When your kidneys require attention, get Swamp-Root at once from any pharmacy. It is sold by every druggist in bottles of two sizes—50c and $1.00.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Adv.

Woman Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbus, Ohio.—"I had almost given up. I had been sick for six years with female troubles and nervousness. I had a pain in my right side and could not eat anything without hurting my stomach. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and ten days later I could eat and it did not hurt my stomach. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel like a new woman. I now weigh 127 pounds so you can see what it has done for me already. My husband says he knows your medicine has saved my life."—Mrs. J. S. Barlow, 1624 South 4th St., Columbus, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains just the virtues of roots and herbs needed to restore health and strength to the weakened organs of the body. That is why Mrs. Barlow, a chronic invalid, recovered so completely.

It pays for women suffering from any female ailments to insist upon having Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SMALL CANNON FOR POCKET

Deadly Weapon of War That May Be Readily Concealed Is a New Invention.

The smallest breech-loading cannon in the world is now being made for pocket use. It is not a toy, but takes a 22-caliber rim-fire cartridge and fires a bullet that would inflict a nasty wound at close range.

It is in the form of a pocket knife, no larger than the usual knife, and has two blades of fine steel. But at one end is a hole. Anyone asked to examine the article and say what it is will be most likely to guess that it is some new-fangled pencil sharpener or cigar cutter.

In the end of the knife is a steel block that turns out on a swivel, being held by a spring that is released with the thumb nail and reveals a hole straight through the block. The cartridge is inserted at the base of this hole, the block is swung back into place, the trigger on the side is opened, thus cocking the pistol, which is now ready to fire. It is held in the hand and the trigger pressed down with the thumb.

RUSSIANS MAKE ANOTHER DRIVE

Keep on Their Steady Advance Toward Lemberg.

TEUTON LINE PUSHED BACK

Two Prolonged Advances Made Toward the Galician Capital—Berlin Admits Russians Have Penetrated German Lines.

London.—The two-pronged advance of the Russians on Lemberg is again gathering full headway, and the Austro-German armies of Prince Leopold of Bavaria and Archduke Karl have been pushed back. Both northeast and southeast of the Galician capital the Russians have registered advances, capturing according to the official report issued in Petrforad, more than 4,000 prisoners. Russian gains are admitted by Berlin.

The two main actions are being waged in the region of the Brody-Krasne railway, about 30 miles northeast of Lemberg, and the Brzezany sector on the Zlota Lipa River, 50 miles southeast of the city.

In the former district the Russians have pressed forward against heavy resistance, taking about 2,000 prisoners. A Teuton position on the right bank of the Zlota Lipa was carried on the southeastern section of the advance.

This new stroke of General Brussilof is believed to have been made to forestall the offensive contemplated by Field Marshal von Hindenburg. It puts the Teutons upon a strict defensive in the Eastern theater, followed close upon the heels of tentative attacks by them which are believed to have been the first movements of the contemplated push.

The Russian official statement says:

"In the neighborhood of the Brody-Krausne Railway and to the southwards, our troops, by heavy fighting are forcing their way forward, the enemy stubbornly resisting the advance. We have captured here 59 officers and 1,928 men of the rank and file.

"The fighting is turning to our favor to the south of Brzezany on the River Tseniuvka and in the region of the highest on the right bank of the Zlota Lipa. Here we captured part of the enemy position by assault, taking 112 officers and 2,268 of the rank and file, as well as some machine guns. Enemy counter attacks during the night were frustrated by our fire."

Berlin's report on the operations follows:

"The Russians at various places have resumed their attacks. On both sides of the Brody-Lemberg Railway and to the southward as far as Graborna, near Zarkow, the Russians' attacks were partially checked by our curtain of fire, while as many as seven repeated charges were completely broken up.

"On the southern wing of this front the Russians have obtained a footing in our first line of defence.

"On the front of Archduke Karl, on both sides of the Zlota Lipa violent hand to hand fighting has been in progress. In the angle between the Ceniovka and the Zlota Lipa the Russians have advanced. Further to the West the Turkish troops ejected by counter attacks the Russian detachments which had forced their way into their lines. Two hundred and thirty prisoners were brought in."

By Nellie Maxwell, Department of Farmers' Institutes of the University of Wisconsin.

We all know, if we have given the subject any thought that the feeding of the family is the most expensive item in the list of household accounts.

Every housewife should keep a careful account of her income and outgo. Too many of us are like the young bride who was given a set of books in which to keep her accounts and when asked by her husband at the end of the month if her accounts balanced, showed him the book, on one page was written, "Received of John, sixty dollars," on the opposite page these words "spent it all."

Since the cost of living is constantly advancing it is vitally necessary that real concern be paid to reducing certain items of expenditure, and as meat is one of the most expensive of our foods, any economy in the purchase of it will make a noticeable reduction in the food bill.

By using meat substitutes of cheese, nuts, milk and eggs which are less expensive but fully as nutritious, the expenses may be reduced. Cheese has a food value of twice that of meat pound for pound, and can be used with much less waste. The use of cheese in combination with milk and eggs makes a most satisfactory substitute for meat.

The cheaper cuts of meat may be utilized more often and on the farm all kinds of meat may be salted, pickled, canned or dried for future use. So that in time of plenty prepare for the famine. Pork sausage, fried to sear both sides of small cakes, packed in large jars and covered with the boiling hot fat so that it makes a perfect seal over the sausage will keep to use in midsummer and is a constant source of satisfaction for it is so easy to get it ready for breakfast as it needs but little more cooking. Chicken may be canned when too much is cooked and set away for another time when an emergency calls it forth.

The utilizing of left-overs in the planning of the meals is another important point for the housewife to consider. It goes without saying that she plans her menus days ahead in order to save expense and use these left-overs acceptably.

Fruits and vegetables lend themselves to all sorts of combinations as salads and soups, and make dishes that are tasty and wholesome.

The costly habit of eating more than we need is not only wasteful of material, bad on the complexion, but vastly more important, ruinous to the digestive organs. Preparing more food than is used, paring away vegetables and fruits, cooking vegetables in so much water that much of the food value is wasted, throwing away the trimmings and bones of meat, that would make good broths, stews or soups—these are some of the wastes that need to be watched. Constant vigilance is the price of success in expenditures as in other things.

Lemon Preserve.

Peel and cut one dozen lemons in slices and soak for a day in cold water. Then boil four pounds of sugar and a cupful of water for about twenty minutes and stir to keep from burning. Next add the lemons, some chopped raisins and almonds and let thicken slowly. This is a delicious and new filling for sandwiches to serve with iced tea or lemonade on a warm afternoon.

To keep lemons fresh, put a layer of fine dry sand at the bottom of a large earthen jar. Place on this a layer of lemons, stalk end downward, being careful that they do not touch one another. Cover these with a three-inch layer of sand. Add another layer of lemons, and so on until the jar is full. In a cool, dry place lemons packed like this will keep a year.

Some Favorite Potato Recipes.

Potatoes Fried Whole—When nearly boiled enough, put small potatoes into a saucepan with butter or beef drippings. Shake them about to prevent burning until they are brown and crisp. Drain them from the fat. It will be an improvement if they are floured, dipped in beaten egg and rolled in fine bread crumbs and then friend.

Potatoes for Breakfast—Cut cold boiled potatoes in slices lengthwise, dip them in beaten egg and put on a buttered pie plate in the oven. As soon as they are brown and hot, serve.

The Linen Press.

With regard to household linen, as a rule the middle of sheets wear out first; but by the old-fashioned plan of turning sides to middle you can give them a fresh lease of life. When past use for beds they serve as dust sheets and on ironing boards.

For Delicate Fabrics.

To clean fine muslin blouses, table centers, etc., dissolve a tablespoonful of borax in a gallon of water; put the muslins into this and let them remain for half an hour; then gently rub them out in fine white suds.

Washing Comforters.

When washing summer comforters do not wring them. Let them hang and drip from the line. Then before they are quite dry whip with a beater to make them fluffy and light.
